CIM Moor Hall- A Conference Centre of Excellence

The charm of a 19th century manor house with a modern, purpose-built Conference Centre of Excellence- a dedicated venue with exacting standards.

Technology is at the heart of the CIM Moor Hall experience

Sam Gryckiewicz, Conference Manager, and a veteran of nine years at the centre, is very specific when he says, “Communication technology is all important now – it’s the key. People expect better than they have at home or in their office. So we aim for the best, with superfast wi-fi, great connectivity and impressive audio visual.”

As you walk into the room, you are immediately affected by the giant 142” screen on the far wall. A repeater screen on the side wall at the rear of the room facilitates presentations and also means the room can be partitioned and used flexibly to optimise space at the centre.

Presenter feedback, varied venue use and business growth

Carillion installed Barco Clickshare to enable presenters and delegates to switch between, or display simultaneously, up to four presentations from any iOS or Android device. The centre has dedicated meeting spaces to cater for meetings ranging from two to 150 people. Moor Hall services local companies and organisations from around the UK, as well as many international delegates.

The importance of supplier outlook

He found a complementary culture and outlook in Carillion Communications who he describes as a trusted supplier. “Carillion was selected from a tender roster of three. They were the first to respond with a detailed quote, which demonstrated a responsiveness they maintained throughout the project”.
